AGITATORS DO IT.

Rev. Mr. Blakesley Delivers a Sermon on the Strike.

At the First Congregational church Sunday morning Rev. Dr. Blakesley preached about the present industrial crisis. He took the ground that instead of agitators creating strife and bitterness between the workman and his employer, both labor and capital should be taught the duty of their interests and the gospel of fair treatment on the part of both.

Dr. Blakesley took his text from Acts xxviii:24, "and now I exhort you to be of good cheer," the words of Paul on his stormy passage from Alexandria to Rome when the danger of the storm was doubled by the clashing of the crew. In the course of his sermon Dr. Blakesley said: "Many of us are familiar with the career of Aeneas of mythology. His home was by the blue waves and there he sat in a cave with all the winds and storms shut up in a bag and intrusted to his keeping. Whenever he would he poured them forth with greater or less violence, sometimes sweeping the seas with destruction."

"His successor in these days appears to have materialized in flesh and blood. He is no longer an imaginary personage. He holds the stormy winds in supreme control at his headquarters by Lake Michigan. He wields them at his pleasure. They are nothing but harmless wind but in their concentrated form they are terribly dangerous. And as long as political demagogues and agitators are abroad in the land who supply which furnish him is likely to be inexhaustible."

"Just now he is pouring them forth in horrible tempest upon the country. Property is wrecked, material interests are damaged, violence is rife, and law and order and all the safeguards of society are trampled under foot. Men are becoming wearied of riot and devastation. They cannot see the wisdom of his majesty King Aeneas in letting loose his winds and bringing disaster to the few industries that remain to us, and adding hunger and despair to the sum of woe and poverty which already prevail. May not the message of Paul be a timely one this morning, 'Be of good cheer.' Ominous though the clouds seem, the storm is not going to last forever. Clear skies and smooth seas are awaiting us in the not distant future. This country is not going to be laid waste by the hand of riot and anarchy."

"A so-called sympathetic strike shows that it has no sympathy for anybody. No sympathy for the rights of employers; no sympathy for the multitudes of innocent men, women and children who are impoverished by its acts; no sympathy for the public welfare. The issue is no longer between labor and capital, between employer and employees, but between anarchy and the authority of the law. The power which throttled a mighty rebellion in arms will be able to cope with the outbreak, though wide in extent."

"May we not believe after this mad conflict the thought of sober and reasonable men will be directed toward the duties which capital owes to labor, and labor owes to capital? Let emphasis be laid hereafter upon the fact that capital owes to labor just compensation, generosity, consideration, recognition of manhood. And that labor owes to capital fidelity, loyalty, honest work. Is it not time to preach unity of interests instead of dissensions and strife? If the mouths of professional agitators could be closed, men who make their living out of these troubles, I believe there could be speedily brought about a reconciliation that would be permanent, and an arrangement whereby a repetition of the events of the past week would be rendered impossible."

"A majority of laboring men, and most of us belong to that class, if let alone, only ask for a fair chance, a just compensation. This being so what is to hinder the coming in of an era of peace and good will, when differences shall be adjusted not by strikes but by arbitration; when duties shall have as much stress laid upon them as rights; when mischief-makers and demagogues shall be permanently retired?"

Within the last week the mayor and city clerk of Topeka have issued refunding bonds to the extent of $72,000. This is a part of the $74,000 ordered issued last November in payment of the $74,000 due on the 8th of that month.

In 1878 the city made an issue of Kansas Midland Santa Fe bonds in the sum of $100,000 in 160 bonds of $1,000 each. These were 8 per cent bonds and ran for twenty years. In 1878 $86,000 of these bonds was called in. This left the $74,000 due last November and the council ordered a reissue of bonds to meet them. The new bonds are of the same denomination and will run twenty years at five per cent per annum payable semi-annually on January 15th and on July 15th.

Seventy-two of the old overdue bonds have been received from the fiscal agency in New York city. Two of the bonds have not yet been heard from.

Judge Eschminger continued her case one week and if she is gone at the end of that time the case will be dropped. The Taylor girl appears to be both feeble in intellect and diseased in body, and the police will look upon her departure as good riddance.
